A CERTAIN cynic once said that a preface was of no earthly use but to give the author of the book a chance to pat himself on the back and boast of his achievements. Whether this be true or no, be it far from the editors of the '98 BUGLE to indulge in any such self-congratulation. It is rather with a realization of the many imperfections of their work that they give it to the critical world of Bowdoin.

However, they cannot launch this latest venture on the perilous sea of popular favor, without a foreword to protect it in some small degree from the rocks and shoals of college criticism. Those who have never undertaken the task of editing an annual have little idea of its difficulties, of the midnight oil consumed, of the struggles with advertisers, of the wrath of those who get "slugged," of the even greater displeasure of some because they don't, of the weary hours spent in proof-reading, and so on, ad infinitum.

We have tried to make this Bowdoin annual something more than "a rehash of the calendar and a few stale jokes." How far our efforts have been crowned with success we leave it with you to judge. We submit our work for your judgment, gentle reader, praying that you will

Be to our faults a little blind,
And to our virtues very kind.

Senior History

S COMMENCEMENT approaches, the thoughts of all Seniors naturally dwell upon the events of the past four years. It is especially gratifying to indulge in such a retrospection and to view again those grand achievements destined to make the class of Ninety-seven preeminent in the annals of old Bowdoin. Thus it is with unbounded delight that the writer assumes his duties, realizing that to be chosen historian of the only class in college which boasts the dignified presence of an Aristocracy Club is indeed a lofty honor.

Four short years ago the class of Ninety-seven first appeared upon the Bowdoin campus, and, with a gullibility and verdancy which an entire college course has failed to obliterate, entered precipitately into the athletic events of the first week. But strife and persistency were unavailing. In baseball and in football the defeat of Ninety-seven was inevitable. It has been ever the custom of this class to adhere strictly to precedent. For that reason its self-sacrificing members, with valor worthy a nobler cause, braved the perils of Horn Concert, and, with true magnanimity, permitted the revered upper-classmen to settle with interest a year's accumulation of debts. Mention might well be made of the famous "peanut drunk" of Sophomore year—an occasion on which a little band of frail Sophomores withstood the vigorous onslaughts of a rugged army of upper-classmen. Yet all such trivial achievements grow pale before that grand event of the athletic exhibition, the Sophomore dumb-bell drill. It is safe to assume that no class has ever yet attempted that difficult drill with the perfect grace and lack of self-consciousness displayed by the Ninety-seven squad on that memorable evening.

The Junior year of the class of Ninety-seven was characterized by several important events. In the renowned library "scrap," Ninety-seven men acquitted themselves honorably, while in the detection and interruption of Ninety-eight's turkey supper they displayed an adroitness unequaled by preceding classes. The assemblies of Junior year were voted an unprecedented success, and the BUGLE, while excelled in some features by previous publications, had at least one merit — that of cheapness. The exercises of Ivy Day reflected great credit upon Ninety-seven, even though the members of the class did not take their seats with quite that graceful dignity which weeks of practice warranted. Thus far the occurrences of Senior year have not been important enough to require mention.

The historian regrets exceedingly that he must forego the pleasure of dwelling upon the exploits of all those individual members who have extended their fame far beyond the limits of Bowdoin's campus. Time and space will permit mentioning but two of these prominent youth, the sanctimonious parson, "John George" and "Mamie," the phenomenal ball twirler, who has won professional glory amid New Hampshire's granite hills, and wrought sad havoc among the hearts of coy White Mountain maids.

The time is rapidly approaching when this illustrious class shall sever its connection with old Bowdoin. What its future career will be it is possible only to conjecture. Its record in college has been at all times an exemplary one, and its deeds have been so rife with college customs and traditions that future classes will do well to keep before them as a guiding star the bright and shining example of the class of Ninety-seven.

CLASS OF '98.

Junior History

RASH indeed would be an attempt to relate in the limited space allotted the numerous and varied experiences of the class of Ninety-eight. The writer is compelled, therefore, to confine himself to a bare enumeration of the feats and defeats of his class, and whether successes or failures predominate it is the privilege of the reader to determine.

Baseball was the first branch of athletics in which Ninety-eight's prowess was tried, and the close of the Sophomore-Freshman game found us prostrate before the experienced Sophomore nine. But compensation for the agonies of baseball defeat has been found in the glorious record of our football eleven.

Thornton Academy and the Colby Freshmen both became our ready victims, while the merest chance saved the strong Sophomore team from complete annihilation. In spite of its elation over its baseball victory, Ninety-nine was brought to the humblest submission by a tremendously overwhelming defeat at the hands of our doughty eleven. Our football career has been, too, a progressive one, for at the close of Freshman year but one member of Ninety-eight had reached that goal of athletic distinction, the Varsity. The close of Junior year finds eight of our members winning coveted laurels on one of the strongest football teams which has ever yet brought athletic fame to old Bowdoin.

Even as meek and lowly Freshmen, we exhibited a bold defiant spirit. Refusing to be intimidated by the threats of upper-classmen, we scorned to purchase, at a Shylock's terms, the famous Ninety-six shell, and in like manner determined to consign to oblivion the nonsensical custom of Horn Concert.

We pass rapidly over our renowned turkey supper. We have but one excuse to offer: it was no fault of ours that it did not occur. Last season's Athletic Exhibition was for Ninety-eight a grand occasion, for on that night our class dumb-bell squad won with ease the prize cup, while our athletic team, by a series of fatal mishaps, resulting in the loss of but one-third of a point, failed to complete the evening's victory.

As to individuals, "all sorts and conditions of men" can be found in our midst. The extremes are represented by Baxter, our bold, bad criminal, whose misdemeanors have been bitterly repented behind prison bars, and Laycock, an incongruous individual, who worships with equal ardor the Y. M. C. A., and—Prof. MacDonald!

Such in brief are the characteristics and the history of the class of Ninety-eight.

Our past has been a happy one, and we look forward with sincere grief to the time when our college days can be lived in memory only.

Sophomore History

THE labors of Hercules seem but trivial pastimes when compared with the grave task which now confronts the feeble historian of a feeble class. If I possessed the transcendent eloquence of the esteemed president of the George Evans Debating Society, or had attained to that degree of literary excellence enjoyed by my renowned classmate, the boy author from Skowhegan, then, in fitting terms, I would extol my beloved class to the summit of cerulean skies. But alas! Mother Nature failed to endow me with those literary qualities so essential to the successful treatment of history. For that reason I cannot clothe in attractive language the history of an unattractive past.

On the seventeenth of September, 1895, the class of Ninety-nine first inflicted its presence on the Bowdoin campus. Led by our noble champion "Eddie" Godfrey we immediately began a course of vigorous resistance to blood-thirsty Sophomores. Experience has taught us now the error of such an action, but "experience is a dear teacher." Since entering college we have accomplished but little, yet we have persistently endeavored to maintain all ancient customs, and, indeed, have successfully inaugurated a new one. Our afternoon tea will long be regarded as the greatest social event in the history of Bowdoin. It is not my intention to dwell upon the manner in which we were treated by upper-classmen the morning following our tea, nor to comment upon the humility with which we doffed our hats at Ninety-eight's bidding. We desire to let the "dead past bury its dead."

In baseball we have been most fortunate, but football defeat has embittered the joy of all other athletic victories. Defeated at the hands of Ninety-eight by a score of 22 to 0, we vainly sought to wreak vengeance on the heads of innocent Freshmen. Alas for human hopes! Our strong eleven failed to score a single point against our light adversaries.

Thus we are forced to seek consolation in the fact that two years remain in which to atone for an inglorious past. In the meantime let us strive with noble endeavor to accomplish something which may serve to make us students worthy of old Bowdoin.

Freshman History

IT is extremely doubtful if a class ever entered Bowdoin wiser in its own conceits than the class of 1900. It is fitting, however, that our bosoms should swell with pride when we review the long list of triumphs which we have crowded into the brief space of a single year. In the athletic contests of the first week did we not acquit ourselves honorably? In football did we not inflict on Ninety-nine a virtual defeat? Have we not beheld with secret satisfaction the humiliation of the dreaded Sophomores when the relentless ire of Ninety-eight was visited on the participants in the "afternoon tea"?

We failed to win the Freshman-Sophomore baseball game, to be sure, yet our injured feelings found ready solace in the bliss of new conquests. The result of the football game surpassed the fondest hopes of the most hopeful Freshman.

If our past is prophetic of the future, we feel assured that our college course will be rife with pleasures and successes. We realize that we are fresh. No person in his senses would deny the fact after gazing upon such worthy representatives as Strout, Cobb and Farwell.

Yet we trust that time and Sophomoric discipline may serve to overcome the exceeding "brashness" which has hitherto characterized our college life.

THE WHITTIER ATHLETIC FIELD.

Digitized by Google

The Whittier Athletic Field

BOWDOIN has been singularly fortunate during the past few years in receiving the magnificent gifts of the Art and Science Buildings, as well as the generous bequests which have made possible so many improvements about the College. The Bowdoin man may point with especial pride, however, to one of the greatest additions of all—the Whittier Athletic Field, since it was built almost entirely by the efforts and subscriptions of Bowdoin men, directed by the ceaseless interest and energy of an alumnus and member of the faculty, Dr. Frank N. Whittier, after whom the field has been most appropriately named.

The need of a suitable running track had long been felt at Bowdoin, and it also became obvious, especially of later years, that the Delta was inadequate for the best results in baseball and football. At last a sum sufficient to cover the expense of constructing a field such as would meet all these requirements was subscribed by alumni, undergraduates, faculty and friends of the College, and ground was broken for the field in the spring of 1896. When the students returned to Brunswick in the fall, they found it completed and ready for use in the season's football.

The Whittier Athletic Field is situated between the New Meadows Road and Bowker Street, and is best reached from the College by a pretty path through the woods. A quarter-mile track 320 feet long on the parallel sides, and 16 feet wide, encloses the oval in which the baseball and football games are played. There is also a 220-yard straightaway track which is 20 feet wide. The track is built of cinders on a heavy clay bottom, and is of the very best materials and construction. The old grand stand was moved down from the Delta and placed opposite the finish line. A stout wire railing separates the field from the spectators, and the whole is enclosed by a high board fence. Everything that ingenuity could devise or energy carry out has been done for the comfort and convenience of athletes and spectators alike.

The possession of a field like this cannot fail to give a great stimulus to athletic interest and success at Bowdoin. To all those alumni who have so promptly assisted in a financial way, the undergraduates owe a debt of gratitude, and especially to him who aided by giving so generously his time, energy and money, Dr. Frank N. Whittier.

George Taylor Files, Ph. D.

THE task of narrating the lives of some men may be likened to the building of a palace. As the rude blocks which must serve as the foundation of the edifice may be swung into place by almost any hand, so may the plain facts of a life be easily set down. But it may be as delicate an undertaking to attempt the portraiture of a man's character as it would be to put the decorative touches on the building, requiring something more than the pen of an ordinary scribe to do justice to the work.

This is peculiarly the case in the present instance, for as the subject of this sketch is still in his early manhood the facts in the story of his life may be quickly told, but it is not so easy to give the reader an adequate idea of the varied characteristics which go to make up one of the most charming personalities which the Bowdoin man meets in his college course.

George Taylor Files was born at Portland, Maine, on the twenty-third of September, 1866. In 1885, after completing his preparatory course at the Portland High School, he entered Bowdoin, in the class of '89. Professor Files' life in college was full of activity in nearly all the varied branches of college interests, for although he led his class in scholarship, he found time for many other things than books. He was on the editorial board of both the Orient and the BUGLE, and was editor-in-chief of the latter, for which, in addition to his editorial work, he made most of the illustrations. Many poems from his pen appeared in the college publications, and in his Junior year he was elected Ivy Poet. He was also prominent in music, being a member of the Banjo and Glee clubs, and singing in the Chapel Choir. He took part in nearly all the declamation contests of his course, at one time receiving a prize. In language and literature he excelled, winning the Sewall Greek Prize, and holding the Brown Memorial Scholarship during his whole course. At his graduation he was awarded the salutatory, and elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

During all his life as an undergraduate at Bowdoin, Professor Files took a great interest in athletics, being especially prominent in tennis and indoor athletics. His interest in this part of college life has not ceased as the years have passed, for he always has manifested an active sympathy with the fortunes of Bowdoin's athletes.

The whole of the year following his graduation he spent at Johns Hopkins University, engaged in the study of Germanics. In the summer of 1890 he received the appointment as tutor in the languages at Bowdoin, and at the following Commencement it was decided that the department of Modern Languages should be divided, and he was elected instructor in German for three years, with two years' leave of absence to be spent in Europe.

While abroad, his time, with the exception of three months spent in research in the British Museum, was very pleasantly occupied in study at the University of Leipzig. He there took the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1893, his thesis being entitled "The Anglo-Saxon House."

He then traveled in Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland and England, returning to Bowdoin in the fall. In June, 1894, he was made professor of German. To this department Professor Files has devoted his whole heart, and his fine scholarly attainments, combined with his ability as a teacher, and the universal esteem in which the student body holds him, make the course in German one of the most progressive and popular departments of the curriculum. We trust it may long be Bowdoin's good fortune to have with her one of her sons who holds so high a place in the admiration and esteem of all.

THE THREE POWERS OF BOWDOIN COLLEGE

ISAIAH SIMPSON. PREX. THE END WOMAN.

A Legend of the Sea

* *

In a sheltered cove by the boundless sea,
 Where the little wavelets play,
In heedless revery and free
 A mermaid sat one day.

She sat upon the smooth sea sands,
 A vision sweet and fair,
And with her soft, caressing hands
 She bound her gold-hued hair.

The salt breeze kissed her bosom fair,
 The wavelets danced to see
Her beauty unadorned, so rare
 In all its purity.

Digitized by Google

And as she sat alone and thought,
 Or sang a low, sweet strain,
A merman bold, with passion fraught,
 Rushed in o'er the deep blue main.

Far out to sea, on a crested wave,
 As he rode at rise and fall,
He saw her, and he dared to brave
 The tempest, or blinding squall.

On, on he came, he reached her side,
 He kissed her fair, cold face,
He bore her off on the ebbing tide,
 In his strong, secure embrace.

And all day long this monster bold
 Braved the engulfing tide,
With his precious burden, still and cold,
 A lovely ocean bride.

Till at evening, when the sun's last ray
 Gleamed up from the western wave,
He sank midst the lowering evening's gray,
 To his dismal coral cave.

But now she once that knew no care,
 And pleasant strands did roam,
Sits still all day and combs her hair,
 In her distant, deep-sea home.

And thus she hides within her breast
 Her sorrow, and does not weep,
But lulls her little ones to rest
 In the cradle of the deep.

Disenchanted

Gone is the fascination once so sweet,
That held me chained in service at thy feet,
When in my heart I felt my happiness complete
If thou but deigned to give a single smile
To me, only to lead me on, to mock the while
My growing fondness, my trustfulness beguile.

Thou art dethroned; another holds thy place,
No heartless maid with laughing eyes and wanton face
To make her every mood a charm, and change a grace.
My present flame is of a different type;
She's always warm, and though in years not over ripe,
At times is quite too much for me—my pipe.

The Bugle Call

Wake! The bugle call is sounding,
Don your armor strong,
Gather from the hills surrounding,
March a valiant throng;
Haste, and let the din of battle
Higher rise and higher;
Fear nor sword nor cannon's rattle,
Nor the volley's fire.

Comrades, brave men, heed the calling,
To horse, quick to the fray!
Ere the evening dews are falling
Ye shall win the day.
See! The enemy advances,
Strike hard while ye may,
Gleaming helmets, swords and lances,
To horse! Away! Away!

A Profane Incident

'Twas in Biology one day,
The Juniors strove to see,
By squinting through their microscopes,
The frisky amœbae.

Among them sat the sleepy Hutch,
Intent upon his work,
The sapient Gardner stood near by,
To see Hutch didn't shirk.

And many a word of sage advice,
And many a jest had he;
But still Hutch patiently observed
The animalculae.

Then Pinky chanced to stroll that way,
And thus to Hutch he spoke,—
"I think you'll find there's something wrong
Inside your microscope."

Then to the lips of sleepy Hutch
This angry answer sprung,—
"Damn it all, who's doing this?
I wish you'd hold your tongue."

He turned and saw that Pinky's face
A frown menacing wore,
And then and there did Hutch resolve
To look before he swore.

In Memoriam

* *

Adam Job Booker

* *

He sleeps, he sleeps,
But no one weeps,
And who should weep, I pray?
His day is done,
His race is run,
He has left and gone away.

He has left, I say,
He has gone away,
From the dust of by-gone years;
The clatter and din,
And noise within,
Fall not on his fretful ears.

No more in the hall
Will be heard the fall
Of his footsteps, weary and slow.
Nor window's smash,
Nor broken sash,
Will trouble him more, I know.

His day is done,
His race is run,
He has gone from us at last
For a needed rest
At time's behest,
A repose from the puttering past.

A DRAMA IN ONE ACT

* *

[SCENE—A gilded hell in North Winthrop. Unexpurgated pictures here and there. Three naughty-looking (empty) whiskey bottles on the mantel. General confusion of clothing, furniture, etc. Through the blue clouds of the vile weed may be discerned the hardened features of Kelley the Kid, picking on a mandolin, Pewee Davis the Fat, Hot Stuff Moulton, Fresh Whitney, Lengthy Lawrence, and others, variously engaged in reading yellow-covered novels, smoking, lounging, etc.]

PEWEE (sings):

Ich bin ein Mann,
Ein starker Mann,
Und was ich thu',
Ist wohl gethan,
Und—

KELLEY (with great pride): And so he came up, and he was an offle big feller, and he says to me, "Get off the earth, you little grasshopper," and I let out with me right and knocked him down in the gutter, and the Black Maria came and carried him off.

FRESH WHITNEY: Oh! Oh!

MOULTON (springs his melodious laugh): Awfully pretty girl. (Ha! Ha!) Stuck on me, by Jove! (Ha! Ha!) But I wouldn't look at her. (Ha! Ha!) Hated to make her cry, though. (Ha! Ha!)

PEWEE (sings loudly):

Oh, no, we'll never get drunk any more,
Oh, no, we'll never get drunk any more,
We'll never get drunk, we'll never get drunk,
We'll never get drunk any more.

MOULTON (sings louder):

We won't go home till morning,
We won't go home till morning,
We won't go home till morning,
Till —

(A still, small knock.)

KELLEY: Stay out!
PEWEE: Kommen Sie herein!
MOULTON: Daylight doth appear.

(Temporary silence. Knock repeated.)

MOULTON: —— ! ! { } ? ,, (.) ! ! —— ! Come in ! ! !
{ }

(Fires Indian club at door, and smashes knob and a panel.)

Door slowly opens, and Kelley's mater and pater loom up through the smoke. Kelley collapses. Moulton dives under the stove. Pewee alone remains unmoved, and sings:

Er führet die Freunde durchs offene Thor,
Drum, Brüderchen, Ergo bibamus!

(Quick curtain.)

The Children's Hour

[With Apologies to Longfellow]

Between the dark and the daylight,
 When the night was beginning to lower,
And the clock on the Science Building
 Was slowly striking the hour,
A band of bloody Sophomores,
 On a turkey supper intent,
Toward the doors of the chapel gray
 Their trembling footsteps bent.
I heard on the campus below me
 The patter of Godfrey's feet,
As he stumbled along in the darkness,
 In quest of something to eat.
There was Nason, the man from Augusta,
 With his hair à la pompadour,
Which, since he tried to stop the train,
 Looks worse than it did before.
There, too, was Clark the elder,
 In whom great power resides,
Not only the strength of a donkey,
 But his character besides.
And once within the chapel,
 These braves of Ninety-nine,
Began to eat of the turkey,
 Like a herd of greedy swine.
They fought for the wings and the drumsticks,
 They scattered the gravy around,
Till all at once from the floor above
 There came a suspicious sound.

Digitized by Google

In fear they dropped their turkey,
 They fled through the open door,
Till vanished were all the legions,
 The men of blood and gore.

* * * * * * *

Next morning, after chapel,
 The Freshmen rushed them out;
They took off their hats to the Juniors,
 'Mid many a hoot and shout.
They thought, those last year's Freshmen,
 They would make an awful row,
And they did. But the way it ended
 Is something they don't tell now.
To be humbled before the Freshmen,
 Made them a little sore;
So ask of Nineteen Hundred,
 If you want particulars more.

Mother Goose Modernized

Sing a song of Pol. Econ.,
 And a man who "wants to know;"
Four and twenty Juniors,
 Sitting in a row.
When the class was opened,
 Morson 'gan to sing,
To show the Prof. of Pol. Econ.
 He didn't know a thing.

AN ECHO FROM THE HALLS OF HISTORY

PROF.—And the Captain said: "Disperse, ye rebels."

PROF. (witheringly)—He could have said, "Disperse, ye donkeys," if he had wanted to.

The Sophomore's Dream

Or How the Freshman Football Game Affected a Gallant Ninety-Niner

I

I dreamed a dream last night,
A strange, wild dream. Upon
My narrow couch asleep I lay,
And as the moon's pale light
Streamed in across my upturned face,
I dreamed of saddened hopes forlorn,
That haunt the human race,
Of deeds that never come to pass,
And all the teeming, burning mass
Of disappointments that infest the day.

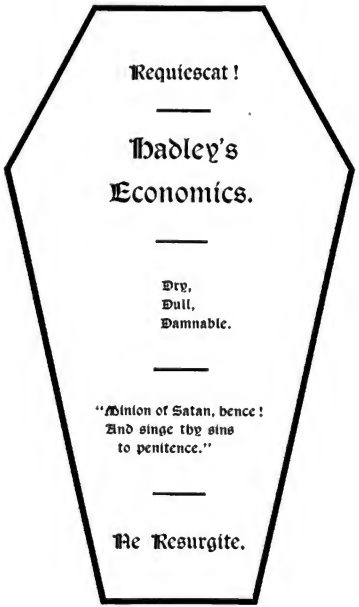

II

I dreamed of victories thrown away,
Of over-confidence, the curse of all,
Of crimes that never know a name,
The follies and the weaknesses of clay.
I dreamed of vain endeavors, and the deeds
Of fools that on the memory pall,
Of discord, growing from a myriad seeds,
Of love that's crossed, of witches' spells,
And all the treacheries of a thousand hells,
Of man's inconstancy and woman's shame.

III

'Twas but a dream. And yet its memory
Will haunt me through the long, long years to come,
When midnight fancies havoc with the mind,
And restful sleep forsakes the weary eye.
'Tis then the troubled soul itself best sees,
And all the deeds of varied life come home.
'Tis then that conscience twinges, or at ease
Rests peaceful. Dreams but picture life,
Its ups and downs, its passions, and the strife
And the uncertainty that fall to human kind.

Fire in each eye, and papers in each hand,
They rave, recite, and madden 'round the land.

CHAPEL CUTS — And oftentimes excusing of a fault,
Doth make the fault the worse by the excuse.

QUILL BOARD — I had rather be a kitten and cry mew,
Than one of these same metre-ballad-mongers.

CLASS TREASURER — Get money, still get money, boy,
No matter by what means.

WINTER TERM "EXAMS"—Beware the ides of March!

FRESHIES — Alas! regardless of their doom,
The little victims play;
No sense have they of ills to come,
Nor care beyond to-day.

MEMORIAL HALL — Rich windows that exclude the light,
And passages that lead to nothing.

TO TEACH OR NOT TO TEACH ?

THAT IS THE QUESTION.

If you decide to Teach, Register with

THE TEACHERS' CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION OF NEW ENGLAND,

36 BROMFIELD STREET, BOSTON.

FRANK B. SPAULDING, Manager.

SIX REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD REGISTER.

1st. Because we depend upon results, having filled over 2,500 positions.
2d. Because Bowdoin students have been very successful with us.
3d. Because we are well and favorably known.
4th. Because we faithfully represent our members at all times.
5th. Because we have special facilities for finding you a position.
6th. Because our Agency is endorsed for efficiency by the leading educators at home and abroad.

SEND FOR OUR MANUAL.

What College Men Say:

O. C. Evans, Principal High School, Henniker, N. H.: It gives me pleasure to say that I have known Mr. F. B. Spaulding of Boston, in a business way, for some time. I have found him square in all his dealings and successful in his work. It seems to me that one makes no mistake in entrusting matters pertaining to school positions to Mr. Spaulding.

Lyman K. Lee, Prin. High School, Oakland, Maine: I have been a member of the Teachers' Co-operative Association of New England for about a year and a half and in that time have twice been assisted to a position by it. I have found it prompt in reporting vacancies and efficient in placing its members. I heartily commend it to teachers desiring to better themselves.

Walter J. Weeks, Prin. High School, Warren, Mass.: I have had business relations with Mr. F. B. Spaulding for several years, both as a teacher and employer, and have found him courteous and honorable in all his dealings. He aims by personal knowledge of position and candidates to put the right man in the right place.

James D. Horne, Prin. High School, Lawrence, Mass.: I have been very much benefited by my connection with the Teachers' Co-operative Association of New England. It is a strictly reliable and painstaking agency.

Wm. L. Burdick, Prof. in University of Colorado, Boulder, Col.: I very gladly commend the Teachers' Cooperative Association, of which Agency Mr. F. B. Spaulding is manager, to the confidence and patronage of both teachers and school officials. I have been acquainted with Mr. Spaulding for a number of years and can bear personal testimony to the efficiency and value of his work. All who are interested in school affairs will find him a wise and trustworthy medium for communication. Teachers seeking positions will meet with loyal and faithful assistance.

E. B. Lawrence, Instructor in Sciences, Buckley High School, New London, Conn.: After several years' acquaintance with Mr. Spaulding and his methods of conducting the Teachers' Co-operative Association, I find it a pleasure to say a word of commendation for the work this Agency is doing. Mr. Spaulding is a thorough worker and candidates with his Agency are sure of receiving assistance. I have recommended several teachers desiring promotion to register with you and all have spoken in favorable terms of the work of your Agency.

Herbert L. Wilbur, Prin. High School, Naugatuck, Conn.: I consider the Teachers' Co-operative Association of New England as most efficient in its methods of working. It is established on a basis which brings before its patrons the largest number of vacancies and candidates that any similar system can, and has the reputation of giving the best of satisfaction to all concerned.

J. H. Blaisdell, A. M., Prin. of High School, Pepperrell, Mass.: It gives me extreme satisfaction to recommend the Teachers' Co-operative Association to all enterprising teachers. There is no need of any good teacher being without a position as long as Mr. Spaulding conducts this Association. In his hands every teacher may expect to obtain the position for which he is competent.

Francis S. Brick, Supt. of Schools, Belfast, Me.: It gives me great pleasure to be able to certify the efficiency of the Teachers' Co-operative Association and its manager. In personal dealings with it I found it honest, working untiringly in the interest of its members and very successful in placing candidates. My present position was obtained under its direction and influence as well as the position I occupied before this one. In my opinion the Teachers' Co-operative Association is the best teachers' Agency in New England and it will always be sure of my hearty sanction and support.

H. J. Steward, Prin. of High School, Barton, Vt.: I appreciate the work you have done in my behalf. I wish your Agency all success. I will say that you sent me more notices of vacancies in positions such as I wanted than any one of the three others to which I belonged.

WHEN FACULTY AND STUDENTS MEET.

Prexy seldom knows you,
Mush is very nice,
Harry suavely bows you,
Hutch spoke to me twice.

Rob bows if you make him,
Pink's not quite so bad,
Mac will if you take him,
Whit is always glad.

Woody rarely cuts you,
Buck just shifts his chew,
Mitch bows and salutes you,
Houghton says "How 'do!"

Georgie says "Was machen Sie?"
Hatch gets on quite fast,
And may know both you and me
Before the year is past.

Frenchy by you rushes
On his bike, then nods,
Emery smiles and blushes,
What greetings these, ye gods!

The student or the new-fledged teacher who reads this was in the primary school — or the cradle! — when we first conceived the idea, years ago, that the schoolbooks lying discarded and dusty on everybody's shelves, or unforgotten in closets and garrets, ought to be rescued from premature oblivion, and made to continue their usefulness in this already too expensive world — — prolonging their own life, and at the same time saving dimes and dollars to many a needy student. To-day every student and every teacher knows, and we want every parent to learn, that no schoolbook should be thrown away until we have been given a chance to appraise it.

Everyone knows, too, that we can supply promptly, and at New York prices, any schoolbook of any publisher — probably second-hand if desired; surely new if we happen to be out of second-hand. More than that, we stand the postage or else we prepay the expressage. Swiftness, courtesy, and fair prices make up our golden rule, and we bestow the same careful consideration upon the boy or girl in the remote hamlet who wants one book in a hurry, that we give to the bookseller who has his whole town to supply. Any school board, any school official, any teacher will find it not only to his convenience, but to his profit, to treat with us because we are not only at the schoolbook center (New York), but are ourselves the schoolbook headquarters, thus ensuring the two great desiderata, discounts and despatch, not to mention the credit-allowance on old books consigned to us for exchange.

Then, again, we ourselves publish one hundred and twenty-five Translations (the Latin, the Greek, German, and French classic writers), and a dozen-and-a-half Dictionaries of the ancient and modern languages, so that we have come to be considered the one sure clearing-house for any translation or dictionary. We also publish question-and-answer books, civil-service guides, speakers, class records, and other specialties for teachers, besides the three-hundred-odd volumes of the University Tutorial Series which comprises text-books (with the unique Teachers' Editions, separate) covering thoroughly Greek, Latin, French, English, the sciences, mathematics, mechanics, history, ethics, logic, etc., etc. These Tutorial text-books are designed for sincere and thorough work, and are the production of sincere men whose exclusive business has been and is to fit students for the severe tests of the London University. The intention of the publishers is to fill the bill, not to rival other series. Yet many competent instructors tell us that the Tutorial books do surpass all others, both editorially and typographically. Complete list free on application.

To anyone mentioning this advertisement we will send free our new and complete alphabetically arranged Catalogue of the schoolbooks of all the publishers. This Catalogue quotes our mailing prices for both new and second-hand books, and is frequently described by enthusiastic customers as a treasure in itself because so compact while so complete. Correspondents who desire to sell schoolbooks to us, should also ask for "Books Wanted" which is our buying Catalogue. No charge for catalogues for yourself or for any of your friends upon whom you may wish to confer the favor. Send us the address — — we will do the rest.

ATHLETES;
Make More Muscle

Also keep what you now have in fine, firm, flexible condition. Develop a sound body free from all aches and pains, if you wish to enjoy perfect physical health, without which life loses all of its most captivating charms. An occasional rub down with the great muscle nervine, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, especially after severe work or exercise of any kind, will strengthen the whole muscular system, invigorate the tired nerves, and make the flesh firm and hard. Originated in 1810 by a Family Physician. There is not a remedy in use which has the confidence of the public to a greater extent.

I found Johnson's Anodyne Liniment of the greatest value while training for the Olympic games in Athens, Apr., '96. The B. A. A. team used it daily, and attributes its excellent showing in the games to the liberal use made of the Liniment.

W. W. HOYT.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT.

Having used Johnson's Anodyne Liniment on a friend who was suffering with lumbago, with good results, I recommend it to any one in need of a good Liniment.

Wm. CORCORAN,
Cycle Trainer,
Manager Charles River Park, Cambridge, Mass.

Used by Athletes Everywhere.

The Leading Physical Culture Teacher of America, Professor ROBERT J. ROBERTS, of the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium, of Boston, says of it as follows:

DEAR SIRS:—I can only speak of the "Old Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" in the highest terms. I have used it in the gymnasium when the boys have strained or overworked their bodies, and it has worked like magic in reducing swelled joints and in removing soreness of the overworked parts. At home my wife has used it with our boys and speaks most enthusiastically; would not be without it for the world. In fact for most all the slight ills of the flesh, internal and external, it most certainly is all you claim for it.

[Signed] ROBERT J. ROBERTS.

Through the busy days of hard study and close confinement of recitation, attendant on Commencement, the Bowdoin Man will want to tune his thoughts to the after-pleasures of a vacation rest.

THE FIRST CONSIDERATION IS

WHERE TO GO? Why not choose the invigorating air of the WHITE MOUNTAINS or the DIXVILLE NOTCH, which is the most newly discovered resort, half-way between Colebrook and the Rangeley Lakes, and from its more rugged grandeur, fast becoming a rival of the famous Crawford Notch? Or you may prefer the bracing salt air of the COAST OF MAINE RESORTS. Or perhaps the balsam-laden, lung-expanding air of the RANGELEY AND MOOSEHEAD LAKES.

THE KATAHDIN AND AROOSTOOK REGION.

THE SECOND CONSIDERATION IS

HOW TO GET THERE? The MAINE CENTRAL R. R., popularly called the "VACATION LINE," will take you to one or all of these places of recreation, and the Passenger Department will be pleased to give you all desired information and send its guide books showing you how to plan a vacation full of pleasure for one week or the entire summer.

SEND US YOUR ANSWER.

A man at a hotel has no money, but possesses a valuable watch chain of 31 links. He makes an arrangement with the Landlord for his board by which the Landlord is to have as security, one link each day for 31 days. At the end of the first day the Landlord has one link; the end of the second day two links, and of course at the end of 31 days the whole chains. How many links of the chain less than five must be cut?

And another question of considerable importance to us. How many of you Bowdoin men are using Bunker Hill, Boston Linen or Boston Bond papers for your correspondence? Have you ever seen them? Ask your stationer about them. If he does not keep them and will not get them for you, they are to be had of us, (a set of samples for &c.) from which you can order.
